Location

Knighton (Welsh: Tref-y-Clawdd, meaning "Town on the Dyke") sits in the rolling hills of the Welsh Marches, straddling the border between Powys, Wales and Shropshire, England. It is the only town built directly on Offa's Dyke, the ancient earthwork constructed in the 8th century by King Offa of Mercia. • The countryside is dotted with ancient earthworks, castles, and scenic trails, making it a gateway to mid-Wales exploration. The town hosts an annual Carnival and Show each August, attracting visitors worldwide to its showground at Bryn-y-Castell. Knighton retains its character as a traditional market town, with shops serving a wide rural community. Tourism plays a major role, supported by cosy B&Bs, farmhouse stays and self-catering cottages. Local clubs include Knighton Town F.C., Bowls and Rugby Club, reflecting a strong community spirit. There is a doctors surgery, leisure centre with swimming pool, nursery and primary school. There is a train station on the Heart of Wales line connecting Swansea to Shrewsbury. Nearby Ludlow, Leominster, Hereford and Shrewsbury offer wider amenities.
