Nestled on Hady Lane in the charming village of Hady, Chesterfield, this delightful detached cottage, built circa 1820, offers a unique blend of historical charm and modern living. Originally owned by Chatsworth Estate, this property boasts a rich heritage and character that is hard to find in contemporary homes.

A "Cottage Style" kitchen has integrated appliances (washing machine, tumble dryer, dish washer & 70/30 fridge / freezer), there is a range cooker which could be left subject to negotiation.

Having a lounge / living room with gas fire, cubbyhole storage / office space with window looking out into the garden room.

The Garden Room allows ample of natural light, dining / sitting space & patio doors onto the rear garden.

A further sitting room / third bedroom also having beautiful gas fire & has patio doors out onto the rear garden.

The residence has ample space for relaxation & entertaining.

The house features two upstairs bedrooms plus the potential for a ground floor bedroom, making it versatile for various living arrangements.

Having a downstairs WC & superb modern, four piece family bathroom on the first floor.

The property is set within a picturesque cottage garden featuring a unique stone table, ideal for gardening enthusiasts who wish to cultivate their green thumb. The south-westerly aspect of the garden allows for plenty of sunlight, creating a warm and inviting outdoor space to enjoy throughout the seasons.

Parking is a breeze with space for two vehicles leading to the detached garage with electric door, a rare find in such a quaint setting. There is further parking space on the lead up to the drive for 2/3 cars. Despite its historical exterior, the interior of the home is surprisingly spacious, often described as a "Tardis" due to its generous layout.
