Hunters Estate Agents are delighted to have been chosen as the sole selling agent, for this fabulous four-bedroom home located in the sought after hamlet of Lower Kenneggy. You may have heard that the secret to a great home lies in creating spaces that are both beautiful, and functional. If you're seeking a home that exemplifies those principles, then this may be the one for you. Our sellers have meticulously completed an extensive program of extension and renovation, nearly doubling the size of the property and upgrading it to an exceptionally high standard throughout. This remarkable transformation has even been featured in various publications—a unique accolade not many homeowners can claim. Owning a home which has been showcased in interior design magazines is certainly something future buyers could share with pride. The exceptionally spacious accommodation briefly comprises four bedrooms, living room, and kitchen diner with adjacent utility room. In addition to the luxurious, spa-like first floor family bathroom, there is also a ground floor bathroom finished to the same high standard, so there should be no queuing to get ready in the mornings here! Outside, the property is surrounded by beautifully landscaped gardens on three sides, which the owners have thoughtfully enhanced with a variety of plants and the addition of a stunning summer house. We anticipate this property being well received by the market, please get in touch to arrange your appointment to view. Available with no onward chain.

The Property

The property makes a fantastic first impression, with a trellis-like archway draped in vibrant plants leading to the front porch. The protruding porch centres the impressive double-fronted elevation, with its freshly rendered, gleaming white exterior. As we step inside, let's take a moment to remove our shoes in the porch and explore the beautifully appointed accommodation within.

A charming stable-style door welcomes you into the inner hallway, which features under-stair storage and a cleverly designed seating bench with additional concealed storage beneath—perfect for practicality, which we at Hunters always appreciate. We love well-thought-out spaces with plenty of storage, and this home certainly delivers.

Turn right, and you'll find yourself in the fabulous kitchen-diner, the true heart of the home. There's ample room to cook, dine, and entertain in style. The space boasts sleek porcelain high-gloss tiled flooring, solid wood countertops, a Belfast sink, and beautiful shaker-style cabinetry. With abundant storage and generous food preparation areas, this kitchen is a dream for any culinary enthusiast. A standout feature is the Rayburn, after-all who doesn't love a Rayburn? The interior design has to be seen to be appreciated, and we are probably going to run out of superlatives before the end of this description, but the style of this room can best be described as premium farmhouse blended with a light, airy coastal charm. The kitchen leads to a practical utility room, an invaluable space for families, complete with plumbing and space for all your white goods. This well-designed area enhances the functionality of the home, and just makes everyday life just that little bit easier.

Also on the ground floor is the living room, and what a special space it is—our photographer almost didn't want to leave! This light-filled, airy room boasts a beautiful triple-aspect design with French doors leading out to the garden. The picturesque window shutters, fabulous wood-burning stove, and light and airy finishes, create the perfect balance of cosy comfort and chic style. The ground-floor bathroom offers a luxurious, spa-like retreat. After a long day of selling and letting homes, I can easily picture myself unwinding in the stunning clawfoot roll-top bath, enjoying complete relaxation. Now, let's head upstairs and continue the tour!

As you ascend the staircase, you'll notice it splits in two, leading left and right in an arrangement known as a bifurcated staircase. On the first floor, off the landing, you'll find four exceptionally spacious bedrooms, each offering lovely views and an abundance of built-in storage. Additionally, there is a stunning bathroom, designed to the highest standard, completing this level's impressive accommodation.
