

Rosebery Avenue, London

Asking Price £600,000

Council Tax:

Tenure: Freehold

Situated on the particularly well connected Rosebery Avenue in N17, enviably equidistant between Tottenham Hale, Northumberland and Bruce Grove for National Rail, Underground and Overground lines, this presentable two bedroom home blends period character with contemporary interior design.

The property opens into a spacious open plan, entire first floor lounge/diner/kitchen, offering a contemporary flow living space ideal for both relaxing and entertaining, galley style kitchen equipped with integrated appliances. High ceilings, white walls, and reclaimed wooden flooring throughout enable a light flooded ambience, whilst maintaining the classic proportions typical of period architecture.

The property comprises two well sized double bedrooms, each filled with natural light and finished with the same understated, contemporary aesthetic

- Two bedroom period property
- Close to amenities and shops
- Close to parks & green spaces
- Potential to extend (STTP)
- Close to Tottenham Hale Station (National Rail, London Underground)
- Contemporary and clean internals
- Ideal for couples, professionals, or small families
- Partially converted loft

