This neutrally decorated three-bedroom semi-detached house is for sale in a convenient part of Leeds, set back from Whitehall Road and overlooking a grassed verge with mature trees, creating a pleasant sense of separation from the road.

Externally, the property benefits from a driveway providing off-street parking for multiple vehicles, alongside a substantial outbuilding comprising a double garage and separate workshop, both with internal access between the two. The workshop also benefits from power, making this a particularly useful space for storage, hobbies or practical working needs. The gardens are private and low maintenance, offering space for seating and alfresco dining, with a tranquil raised pond creating a peaceful outdoor setting.

Inside, the bay-fronted living room provides a comfortable reception space with neutral décor and plush carpet, enjoying an attractive outlook to the front. The kitchen is a good size, offering ample wall and base units, a double oven and space for white goods, flowing neatly into both the living area and the conservatory.

The conservatory benefits from central heating and is currently used as a dining space throughout the year, with French doors opening out to the rear garden, adding a very practical additional ground-floor room with easy outdoor access.

Upstairs, bedroom one is a bay-fronted double to the front with fitted mirrored wardrobes. Bedroom two is another double to the rear with fitted wardrobes and a private outlook, while bedroom three is a single room that would suit a home office, nursery or occasional bedroom. The bathroom features a tiled suite with corner bath and cream tiled walls, remaining perfectly functional with scope to modernise over time.

There is also an impressive loft room with Velux window, offering excellent proportions for an occasional room and benefiting from useful eaves storage, providing far more than just storage alone.

The home is well placed for local amenities and everyday conveniences, offering a comfortable and flexible layout with excellent internal and external space. The property has an EPC rating of C and falls within Council Tax Band B.
