To the second floor, there is two further bedrooms, one with en-suite and a family bathroom.

Chaddock Hall on the outskirts of the picturesque villages of Astley and Worsley echoes with almost a millennium of history with the site having been inhabited since records began. A hall had stood here since the 14th century and has been home to a variety of noblemen and yeomen throughout the ages. Now, Chaddock Hall has been turned into an exclusive gated development of luxury properties. It is the perfect place for idyllic walks to country pubs, or exploring the quiet lanes and the historic Bridgewater Canal that wends its way gently through the area. Astley and Worsley have excellent
