Farmhouse

The traditional, stone-built farmhouse offers spacious, characterful accommodation suitable for family living, with many charming features across three floors. With entrance through a porchway, the farmhouse kitchen offers a pleasant space for dining with a brick-built surround hosting an AGA, through to a multi-functional office space and useful utility. The inner hallway gives entrance to a living room with a striking tiled floor, log burner, and windows offering dual aspect views across the paddocks. A second reception room presents a pleasant living space again hosting a log burner, whilst a conservatory offers panoramic views across the gardens and land, with doors opening out.

The first floor offers three double bedrooms, with views across the surrounding Derbyshire countryside, a bedroom/office with built-in storage space, and a family bathroom. To the second floor, a versatile attic space hosting a sauna and shower, as well as a general storage room.

Overall, the house offers accommodation with a true 'country' feel with much potential for a purchaser to put their own stamp and taste on the interiors.

Externally

The farmhouse benefits from a lawned garden to the front, bounded by dry stone walling, with a collection of mature trees and a vegetable patch to one side hosting a greenhouse and colourful planted border. The driveway offers plentiful parking adjacent to the farmhouse, and access to the former dairy - a stone built general store utilised as a laundry

Buildings

The property benefits from a wide range of functional outbuildings, each flexible in their uses with the ability to be adapted and tailored to a purchasers needs. The buildings all form a cluster in the farmyard, and have principally been utilised for agricultural purposes but provide great potential for commercial and business use (subject to planning consent), benefitting from great accessibility onto larger transport/ road links.

The buildings can be briefly summarised as follows, adopting the numbering shown on the buildings plan;

1. Steel portal frame building with concrete block walls and solar panels to the roof, internally offering an enclosed garage, livestock loose housing, and general storage (390m²)
2. Steel portal frame building with concrete panel walls, utilised for livestock housing (395m²)
3. Steel portal frame building with concrete panel walls, utilised for livestock housing, adjoining above (340m²)
4. Steel portal frame building with concrete panel walls, utilised for livestock housing, adjoining above (375m²)
5. Stone and timber constructed building hosting cubicles and storage areas, with a stone built lean-to (255m²)
6. Timber framed and corrugated sheeted building utilised for loose housing (135m²)
7. Stone constructed building housing a workshop and storage space (90m²)
8. Timber framed Dutch barn with part stone walls and lean-to (190m²)
9. Timber frame building with block built walls, feed passage to the middle (280m²)
10. Steel portal frame building with block built walls, with cubicles and storage areas (415m²)
11. Concrete frame building with concrete panel and yorkshire boarded sides, a lean monopitched roof lean-to to one side (285m²)

Alongside the buildings, there are slurry pits and fodder storage areas to tailor to the agricultural market.

Land

The land on offer divides into multiple paddocks, all down to permanent pasture in good heart suitable for mowing and grazing of livestock and horses, laying to the south of the farmstead. The external boundaries offer dry stone walling, the access lane runs through the centre of one paddock and a purchaser would be responsible for erecting a fence to secure the paddocks should they wish. The acreage is manageable, perfect for those with small-scale hobby farming interests, amenity or equestrian buyers.

The small portion of land laying west of the farmhouse has previously hosted Shepard's huts for holiday accommodation, suggesting the potential for income to a new purchaser, subject to all the required and necessary consent.
